UNVIOLATED. adj. Not injured; not broken.
 Herein you war against your reputation,
 And draw within the compass of suspect
 Th' inviolated honour of your wife. St. Asaph.
 He, with singular constancy, preserved his duty and fidelity to his majesty inviolated. Carleton.
 This strength diffus'd
 No less through all my sinews, joints, and bones,
 Than thine, while I prefer'd these locks unhorn,
 The pledge of my unviolated vow. Milton.
 UNVIRTUOUS. adj. Wanting virtue.
 If they can find in their hearts that the poor, unvirtuous, fat knight shall be any further afflicted, we two will be the ministers. Shakespeare, Merry Wives of Windsor.
 UNVISITED. adj. Not resorted to.
 In some wild zone
 Dwell, not unvisited of heav'n's fair light, Secure. Milton's Par. Lost, b. ii.
 The playhouse and the park unvisited must lie. Dryden.
 UNIFORM. adj. Wanting uniformity.
 Such an uniform piety is in many so exactly apportioned to Satan's interest, that he has no cause to with the change of his tenure. Deacy of Piety.
 UNVOYAGEABLE. adj. Not to be passed over or voyaged.
 Not this unvoyageable gulph obscure,
 Detain from following thy illustrious track. Milton.
 UNWORN. adj. Not incited; not pressed.
 The time was once, when thou unwar'd would'st vow,
 That never words were music to thine ear,
 Unless I spoke. Shakespeare, Comedy of Errors.
 UNUSED. adj.
 1. Not put to use; unemployed.
 Eke, whose husband about that time died, forgetting the absent Plangus, or, at least, not hoping of him to attain to aspiring a purpose, left no art untry'd, which might keep the line from breaking, whereto the fish was already taken. Sidney.
 Sure he that made us with such large discourse,
 Looking before and after, gave us not
 That capability and godlike reason,
 To rust in us unused. Shakespeare's Hamlet.
 2. Not accustomed.
 He, untried to such entertainment, did shortly and plainly answer what he was. Sidney, b. ii.
 One, whose eyes,
 Albeit untried to the melting mood,
 Dropt tears as full as the Arabian trees
 Their medicinal gum. Shakespeare, Othello.
 What art thou?
 Not from above: no, thy wan looks betray Diminish'd light, and eyes untried to day. Dryden.
 UNUSEFUL. adj. Useless; serving no purpose.
 I was persuaded, by experience, that it might not be un-useful in the capacities it was intended for. Gloverville.
 Birds flutter with their wings, when there is but a little down upon them, and they are as yet utterly unuseful for flying. Isidore against Aetolus.
 As when the building gains a surer stay,
 We take th' unuseful scaffolding away. Dryden.
 Pleas'd to find his age
 Declining, not unuseful to his lord. Philips.
 UNUSUAL. adj. Not common; not frequent; rare.
 With this unusual and strange course they went on, till God, in whole, heavenly worldly judgments I nothing doubt but that there may be hidden mercy, gave them over to their own inventions. Hosier.
 You gain your point, if your industrious art
 Can make unusual world easy and plain. Ressemmer.
 A sprightly red vermilion all her face;
 And her eyes languish with unusual grace. Granville.
 That peculiar turn, that the world should appear new, yet not unusual, but very proper to his suitors. Fulton.
 The river flows redundant, and attacks
 The ling'ring remnant with unusual tide. Philips.
 UNUSUALNESS. n. s. Uncommonness; infrequency.
 It is the unusualness of the time, not the appearance, that surprises Alcibiades. Brace.
 UNUTTERABLE. adj. Ineffable; inexpressible.
 Sighs now breath'd
 Unutterable, with the spirit of prayer
 Inp'd, and would for heav'n with speedier flight
 Than thou art ready. Milton's Par. Lost, b. xi.
 It wounds my soul
 To think of your unutterable sorrows. Smith.
 UNVULNERABLE. adj. Exempt from wound: not vulnerable.
 The god of soldier inform Thy thoughts with nobleness, that thou may'st prove
 To shame invulnerable, and stick it th' wars
 Like a great sea mark, standing every flaw. Shakespeare.

UNWAKENED. adj. Not roused from sleep.
 The more
 His wonder was, to find unawaken'd Eve
 With tresses compos'd. Milton's P. Lost, l. v.
 UNWALLED. adj. Having no walls.
 He came to Tauris, a great and rich city, but unwall'd, and of no strength. Kneller's Hist. of the Turk.
 UNWAKES. adv. Unexpectedly; before any caution, or expectation.
 She, by her wicked arts,
 Too false and strong for earthly skill or might,
 Unwakes me wrought unto her wicked will. Fairy Queen.
 His loving mother came upon a day
 Unto the woods, to see her little son,
 And chanc'd unawares to meet him in the way,
 After his sports and cruel pastime done. Fairfax, b. i.
 Still we fail, while prosperous blows the wind,
 Till on some secret rock unawares we light. Fairfax.
 UNWAKILY. adv. Wit out caution; carelessly.
 The best part of my powers
 Were in the washes all unawakily
 Devour'd by the unexpected flood. Shakespeare.
 If I had not unawakily engaged myself for the present publishing it, I should have kept it till I had look'd over it. Digby.
 By such principles, they renounce their legal claim to liberty and property, and unawakily submit to what they really abhor. Freeholder, N° 10.
 UNWARISS. n. s. [from unwary.] Want of caution; carelessness.
 The same temper which inclines us to a desire of fame, naturally betrays us into such slips and unwariness, as are not incident to men of a contrary disposition. Speccator, N° 256.
 UNWAKILY. adv. Not fit for war; not used to war; not military.
 He safely might old troops to battle lead,
 Against th' unwarlike Persian, and the Mede;
 Whose hasty flight did from a bloodless field,
 More spoils than honour to the victor yield. Waller.
 Avert unwarlike Indians from his Rome,
 Triumph abroad, secure our peace at home. Dryden.
 UNWARY. adj. Not cautioned; not made wary.
 Unexperienced young men, if unwar'd, take one thing for another, and judge by the outside. Lisle.
 May hypocrites,
 That slyly speak one thing, another think,
 Drink on unwar'd, till by enchanting cups
 Infatuate, they their wily thoughts disclose. Philips.
 UNWARRANTABLE. adj. Not defensible; not to be justified;
 not allowed.
 At very distant removes an extemporary intercourse is feasible, and may be compassed without unwarrantable correspondence with the people of the air. Gloverville.
 He who does an unwarrantable action through a false information, which he ought not to have believed, cannot in reason make the guilt of one fine the excuse of another. South.
 UNWARRANTABLY. adv. Not justifiably; not defensibly.
 A true and humble sense of your own unworthiness, will not suffer you to rise up to that confidence, which some men unwarrantably pretend to, nay, unwarrantably require of others. Waller's Preparation for Death.
 UNWARRANTED. adj. Not ascertained; uncertain.
 The subjects of this kingdom believe it is not legal for them to be enforced to go beyond the seas, without their own consent, upon hope of an unwarranted conquest; but to resist an invading enemy, the subject must be commanded out of the counties where they inhabit. Bacon.
 UNWARY. adj.
 1. Wanting caution; imprudent; hasty; precipitate.
 Nor think me to unwarly,
 To bring my feet again into the snare
 Where once I have been caught. Milton's Agony.
 So spake the false archangel, and insus'd
 Bad influence into th' unwarly breast. Milton.
 So talk'd the spirited fly snake; and Eve,
 Yet more amaz'd, unwarly thus reply'd. Milton.
 Turning short, he struck with all his might Full on the helmet of th' unwarly knight. Dryden.
 Deep was the wound
 Propositions about religion are insinuated into the unwarly, as well as uninitiated understandings of children, and riveted there by long custom. Locke.
 2. Unexpected. Obsolete.
 All in the open hall amazed stood,
 At suddenness of that unwarly light,
 And wonder'd at his breathless hasty mood. Fairy Queen.
 UNWASHED. adj. Not washed; not cleaned by washing.
 UNWASHEN. adj. Another lean unwash'd artificer
 Cuts off his tale, and talks of Arthur's death. Shakespeare.
 To eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man. Matt. xv.
 He

He accepts of no unclean, no unwash'd sacrifice; and if repentance utter not in, prayer will never find admittance. Duffa.
 When the fleece is thorn, if sweat remains Unwash'd, it soaks into their empty veins. Dryden.
 UNWASHED. adj. Not consumed; not diminished.
 Why have those rocks so long unwashed stood,
 Since, lavish of their stock, they through the flood
 Have, ages past, their melting crystal spread,
 And with their spoils the liquid regions fed? Blackmore.
 UNWASHING. adj. Not growing less; not decaying.
 Purest love's unwashing treasure;
 Constant faith, fair hope, long leisure;
 Sacred Hymn! these are thine. Pope.
 UNWASHED. adj. Not used to travel; not seasoned in the road.
 Beasts that have been rid off their legs, are as much for a man's use, as colts that are unwashed, and will not go at all. Suck.
 UNWASHED. adj. Not weakened.
 By reason of the exhalation of some air out of the glass, the classical power of the remaining air was very much debilated, in comparison of the unwashed profusion of the external air. Boyle.
 UNWASHED. adj. Not furnished with offensive arms.
 As the beards are armed with fierce teeth, paws, horns,
 and other bodily instruments of much advantage against unwashed men; so hath reason taught man to strengthen his hand with such offensive arms, as no creature else can well avoid. Raleigh.
 UNWASHABLE. adj. Not to be tired.
 Desire to resemble him in goodness, maketh them unwashable. Locke, b. i.
 UNWASHED. adj.
 1. Not tired; not fatigued.
 The Creator from his work
 Desisting, though unwashed, up return'd. Milton.
 Their bloody talk unwashed, still they ply. Waller.
 Still th' unwashed we purifies the useful strain. Dryden.
 2. Indefatigable; continual; not to be spent; not sinking under fatigue.
 Joy'd to range abroad in fresh attire,
 Through the wide compass of the airy coast,
 And with unwashed limbs each part engag'd. Spenser.
 Godlike his unwashed bounty flows;
 First loves to do, then loves the good he does. Denham.
 A winged virtue through th' ethereal sky,
 From orb to orb, unwashed dash thou fly. Tickell.
 An unwashed devotion in the service of God, recommended the gospel to the world.
 The righteous shall certainly be saved, but then the christian character of a righteous man implies a constant, unwashed performance in many painful instances of duty. Rogers.
 To UNWASH. v. a. To refresh after weariness.
 In unwarries, and refreshes more than anything, after too great labour. Temple.
 UNWED. adj. Unmarried.
 This servitude makes you to keep unwed. Shakespeare.
 UNWEDGABLE. adj. Not to be cloven.
 Merciful heav'n!
 Thou rather with thy sharp and sulph'rous bolt
 Split'st the unwedgable and gnarled oak,
 Than the soft myrtle. Shakespeare, Measure for Measure.
 UNWEDD. adj. Not cleared from weeds.
 Field 'tis an unweeded garden,
 That grows to seed; things rank, and gross in nature,
 Possess it merely. Shakespeare's Hamlet.
 UNWEDD. adj. Not lamented. Now unwept.
 He must not float upon his watery bier
 Unwept, and welter to the parching wind,
 Without the meed of some melodious tear. Milton.
 UNWEDDING. adj. Ignorant; unknowing.
 Her seeming dead he found with feigned fear,
 As all unwedding of that well she knew;
 And pained himself with busy care to rear
 Her out of careless swoon. Fairy Queen, b. i.
 But contrary, expecting he fulfilled
 The purpos'd doom, pre-ordain'd and fix'd
 Of the high. Paradise Regain'd.
 UNWEIGHED. adj.
 1. Not examined by the balance.
 Solomon left all the vessels unweighed, because they were exceeding many. 1 Kings vii.
 2. Not considered; negligent.
 What unwearied behaviour hath this Flemish drunkard pickt out of any conversation, that he dares in this manner essay me? why he hath not been thrice in my company. Shakespeare.
 Laughing, what words have pass'd thy lips unweigh'd,
 Deem not unjustly by me doom'd oppress;
 Of human race the wisest, and the best. Pope's Odyssey.
 UNWEIGHING. adj. Inconsiderate; thoughtless.
 Wit's why, no question but he was—a very superficial, ignorant, unweighing fellow. Shakespeare.
 UNWELCOME. adj. Not pleasing; not grateful; not well received.

U N W

Such welcome and unwelcome things at once,
 'Tis hard to reconcile. Shakespeare, Macbeth.
 Soon as th' unwelcome news
 From earth arriv'd at heaven-gate, displeas'd
 All were who heard. Milton's Par. Lost, b. x.
 Though he that brings unwelcome news
 Has but a losing office, yet he that shews
 Your danger first, and then your way to safety,
 May heal that wound he made. Shakespeare's Sephy.
 For'd it in her presence, and condemn'd to live;
 Unwelcome freedom, and unkind relief. Dryden.
 From the very first instances of perception, some things are grateful, and others unwelcome to them; some things that they incline to, and others that they fly. Locke.
 Such hasty night as these, would give very unwelcome interruptions to our labours. Bentley's Sermons.
 UNWELT. adj. Not lamented; not bemoaned.
 Our fatherless distress was left unwept;
 Your widow dolours likewise be unwept. Shakespeare, Rich. III.
 We, but the slaves that mount you to the throne:
 A base, ignoble crowd, without a name;
 Unwept, unworthy of the funeral flame;
 By duty bound to forfeit each his life. Dryden.
 UNWELT. adj. Not moist.
 Once I meant to meet
 My fate with face unmov'd, and eyes unwept;
 Yet since I have thee here in narrow room,
 My tears shall set thee first afloat within thy tomb. Dryden.
 UNWELT. adj. Not punished; not corrected with the rod.
 Tremble, thou wretch,
 That hast within thee undivulged crimes,
 Unwept of justice. Shakespeare, K. Lear.
 Once I caught him in a lie;
 And then, unwept, he had the grace to cry. Pope.
 UNWHOLESOME. adj.
 1. Infalubrious; mischievous to health.
 The discovery of the disposition of the air, is good for the prognosticks of wholesome and unwholesome years. Bacon.
 There I a prisoner chain'd, scarce freely draw
 The air imprison'd also, close and damp,
 Unwholesome draught; but here I find amends,
 The breath of heav'n fresh-blowing, pure and sweet.
 With day-spring born: here leave me to respire. Milton.
 How can any one be altered, that his meat and drink are not poisoned, and made unwholesome before they are brought to him? South.
 Rome is never fuller of nobility than in summer; for the country towns are so infested with unwholesome vapours, that they dare not trust themselves in them, while the heats last. Adrian in Italy.
 Children born healthy, often contract diseases from an unwholesome nurse. A but not in Diet.
 2. Corrupt; tainted.
 We'll use this unwholesome humility; this gross, watery pumpon; we'll teach him to know turtles from jays. Shakespeare.
 UNWIELDY. adv. Heavily; with difficult motion.
 Unwieldily they wallow first in ooze;
 Then in the shady covert seek repose. Dryden.
 UNWIELDINESS. n. s. Heaviness; difficulty to move, or be moved.
 To what a cumbersome unwieldiness,
 And burdensome corpulence my love had grown,
 But that I made it feed upon
 That which love would endure, discretion. Donne.
 The supposed unweildiness of its massy bulk, grounded upon our experience of the inaptitude of great and heavy bodies to motion, is a mere imposture of our senses. Gloverville.
 UNWIELDY. adj. Unmanageable; not easily moving or moved; bulky; weighty; ponderous.
 An ague, meeting many humours in a fit, unwieldy body of fifty-eight years old, in four or five fits, carried him out of the world. Charleton.
 Part, huge of bulk!
 Wallowing unwieldily, enormous in their gait,
 Tempest the ocean. Milton's Par. Lost, b. vii.
 Unwieldy limbs of wealth, which higher mount,
 Than files of martial'd figures can account. Dryden.
 Nothing here th' unwieldy rock awails,
 Rebounding hampers from the plaited scaly,
 That, firmly join'd, preserv'd him from a wound,
 With native armour crust'd all around. Adrian's Ovid.
 What carriage can bear away all the rude and unwieldy lop-pings of a branchy tree at once? Waller's Impr. of the Mind.
 UNWILLING. adj. Loath; not contented; not inclined; not complying by inclination.
 The nature of man is unwilling to continue doing that wherein it shall always condemn itself. Locke, b. v.
 If thou dost find him tractable,
 Encourage him, and tell him all our reasons.
 If he be leaden, icy, cold, unwilling,
 Be thou so too. Shakespeare's Rich. III.
 If
